Creating Family Resilience?

The Support Network’s Experience of Participating in the

Resolutions Approach

Kirstin Lean

Supervisor: Dr. Lynn McClelland
Clinical Tutor
School of Psychology
University of Exeter

Field Collaborator: Colin Luger
Systemic Family Psychotherapist
Resolutions Consultancy, Bristol

Target Journal: Journal of Family Therapy
Word Count: Manuscript: 7981
Appendices: 6748

Date of Submission: 9 January 2012

Submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the Doctorate in Clinical and Community Psychology Degree, University of Exeter.
ABSTRACT

The balance between family support and child protection services is continuously challenged by high-profile cases. These highlight shortcomings both of the UK system and of research on the effectiveness of child maltreatment interventions (Munro, 2011). One such intervention is the Resolutions Approach to ‘denied’ child abuse (Turnell and Essex, 2006) – a systemic approach which creates a support network including extended family, friends, community members and professionals. There is, however, only limited research analysing the supporters’ experience of this intervention.

In the present study five semi-structured group interviews were conducted in order to investigate how the family support network members made sense of their participation in Resolutions. Through a thematic analysis three related themes: returning hope; building safety and trusting a professional were identified. Additionally, special attention was paid to processes linked to the creation of family resilience (Walsh, 2003). Based on two contrasting case studies the potential creation of family resilience through Resolutions was discussed and clinical recommendations for creating family resilience within support networks were outlined.

Keywords: child protection, systemic intervention, extended family support network experiences, family resilience, thematic analysis
Contents Manuscript

Structure i

Acknowledgements ii

Copy of Instructions for Authors iii

Abstract 1

1. Introduction
   1.1 Background 2
   1.2 The Resolutions Approach 2
   1.3 The Family Resilience Concept 4
   1.4 Research Aims and Questions 6

2. Methodology
   2.1 Methodological Approach and Researcher’s Epistemological Positioning 7
   2.2 Sampling Procedure 8
   2.3 Contacting Approach 9
   2.4 Interview Format 10
   2.5 Participants 11

3. Results
   3.1 Participating in Resolutions 13
   3.2 Creating Family Resilience? 18
4. Discussion

4.1 How did the Network Members experience their Participation in Resolutions

4.2 How can Resolutions help to create Family Resilience?

4.3 How do the results extend existing Research and relate to Theory?

4.4 Implications for Clinical Practice

4.5 Limitations and Suggestions for Future Research

4.6 Conclusions

References

Appendices

Appendix 1 - Phases of the Resolutions

Appendix 2 - Resolutions Consultancies

Appendix 3 - Family Resilience Framework