6150	East Cowes. Mouth of River Medina	Wessex Archaeology was commissioned to archaeologically record, sub-sample and assess a series of geotechnical cores as part of the ground investigations for the East Cowes Project. Tertiary bedrock probably of the Oligocene Bouldnor Formation, was reached at a variable depth, at 3.8m to 21.25m below OD. This was overlain by sandy, clayey beach/fluvial deposits then peat deposits. The latter indicate past presence of marshland/saltmarsh which would have provided a semi-stable terrestrial waterlogged land surface, potentially accessible for contemporary human exploitation. The upper part of the sequence consists of thick silty estuarine alluvial deposits of Holocene age deposited during and after the inundation of the Solent. The top of the sequence is of modern sandy beach sediments, deposited due to the creation of a breakwater to the north of the site.
