First-language English Teachers' Beliefs about Grammar and the Relationship of Espoused Beliefs to Pedagogical Practice

Watson, Annabel Mary

Submitted for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Education

March 2012
First Language English Teachers' Beliefs about Grammar, and the Relationship of Espoused Beliefs to Pedagogical Practice

Submitted by Annabel Mary Watson to the University of Exeter as a thesis for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Education, March 2012.

This thesis is available for Library use on the understanding that it is copyright material and that no quotation from the thesis may be published without proper acknowledgement.

I certify that all material in this thesis which is not my own work has been identified and that no material has previously been submitted and approved for the award of a degree by this or any other University.

(Signed) ..........................................................................................................................
ABSTRACT

This thesis presents an investigation into the beliefs held by practising teachers of L1 (first language) English in English secondary schools about the value of teaching grammar. Through case studies, it also relates beliefs to pedagogical practice.

The study was conducted in two phases. The participants in the first phase were thirty-one teachers, all of whom were taking part in the ESRC-funded Grammar for Writing? project (grant number RES-062-23-0775). Participants taught three writing schemes to their year eight class over the course of a year, and were observed and interviewed once during each scheme. The interviews elicited their beliefs about the teaching of writing in general and about teaching sentence level grammar in particular. The interview data were inductively analysed to explore the participants’ espoused beliefs.

The case-study participants in the second phase were three volunteers from the original cohort. These teachers were each observed for a period of three weeks, teaching their own writing schemes to key stage three classes. Stimulated recall interviews were used to capture their reflections on their teaching practices, and think-aloud protocols were used to capture their thinking as they assessed writing samples. Phase one and two data were analysed to explore some of the different ways in which teachers practise grammar teaching, along with the matches, mismatches and tensions between their practice and their espoused beliefs.

The findings are presented using a model which explores teachers’ conceptual, affective and evaluative beliefs about grammar, along with episodic influences. The study is significant in offering an up-to-date picture of teachers’ beliefs and practice in this highly-contested aspect of English, as well as in offering insights into the relationships between conceptual, affective and evaluative aspects of belief, and into some of the causes reported by teachers for mismatches and tensions between beliefs and practices.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This work was supported by the Economic and Social Research Council [grant number RES-062-23-0775].

I would like to thank all of my participants for their frank and generous contributions to this project. I am also particularly grateful to my case study participants for welcoming me into their classrooms with warmth, enthusiasm and openness.

Debra Myhill and Susan Jones, my supervisors, and my colleague Helen Lines welcomed me into their research team immediately, providing models of professionalism and research excellence. My supervisors have been enthusiastic, patient, encouraging and kind, and have provided me with many more opportunities than I could have anticipated.

I am also grateful to Tom and Dee Watson for their ongoing interest and enthusiasm.

Finally, I wish to thank my husband, Martin Osborne, for his endless support and encouragement.
LIST OF CONTENTS

1. Introduction ................................................................................................................................. 17
   1.1 The research problem .............................................................................................................. 17
      1.1.1 Writing and grammar in the curriculum ......................................................................... 17
      1.1.2 Teachers’ beliefs and practice ...................................................................................... 19
   1.2 The scope and significance of the study .................................................................................. 21
   1.3 Definitions of ‘grammar teaching ’ ...................................................................................... 24
      1.3.1 Traditional grammar teaching ..................................................................................... 24
      1.3.2 Rhetorical grammar teaching ....................................................................................... 25
      1.3.3 Functional grammar teaching ....................................................................................... 26
      1.3.4 Stylistic grammar teaching ............................................................................................. 26
      1.3.5 Contextualised grammar teaching ............................................................................... 27
      1.3.6 Implicit / explicit grammar teaching .............................................................................. 28
   1.4 The structure of the thesis ....................................................................................................... 30

2. Literature Review ......................................................................................................................... 31
   2.1 Studying teacher belief .......................................................................................................... 31
      2.1.1 Why study teachers’ beliefs? ......................................................................................... 31
      2.1.2 Defining ‘belief’ .............................................................................................................. 32
      2.1.3 Beliefs and practice ........................................................................................................ 37
   2.2 Teaching grammar for writing .............................................................................................. 39
      2.2.1 Models of writing development ..................................................................................... 39
      2.2.2 The grammar debate ..................................................................................................... 41
      2.2.3 Grammar policy ............................................................................................................. 53
      2.2.4 Grammar in public discourse ....................................................................................... 58
      2.2.5 Teacher subject knowledge and grammar teaching ..................................................... 61
      2.2.6 Teachers’ beliefs about grammar teaching ..................................................................... 65
   2.3 Summary .................................................................................................................................. 74
3. Methodology

3.1 Aims

3.2 Research questions

3.3 Research paradigm and theoretical position

3.3.1 Research paradigm

3.3.2 Theorisation of ‘belief’

3.4 Research design

3.4.1 Overview

3.4.2 Phase one: the ‘Grammar for Writing?’ project

3.4.3 Phase two: the case studies

3.4.4 Trustworthiness

3.4.5 Participants

3.5 Data: methods of information collection

3.5.1 Phase one: all participants

3.5.1a Semi-structured interviews

3.5.1b Observations

3.5.1c Written reflections on belief profiles

3.5.2 Phase two: case study teachers

3.5.2a Observations

3.5.2b Stimulated recall interviews

3.5.2c Think-aloud protocols

3.5.2d Field notes

3.5.3 Piloting

3.5.4 Dialogic and contextual data collection

3.6 Data: information analysis

3.6.1 Overview

3.6.2 Phase one interview analysis

3.6.3 Phase two case study analysis

3.7 Ethics

3.7.1 Responsibilities to participants

3.7.2 Responsibility to sponsors

3.7.3 Responsibility to the community of researchers

3.7.4 Further ethical considerations

3.8 Limitations
3.9 Bracketing ........................................................................................................... 117
  3.9.1. Research interests ....................................................................................... 117
  3.9.2. Personal value system ............................................................................... 118
  3.9.3 Potential role conflict ................................................................................. 119
  3.9.4. Gatekeepers’ interests ............................................................................... 120
  3.9.5. Feelings ....................................................................................................... 120
  3.9.6. Further reflections on the research process ............................................. 121

4. Teachers’ Espoused Beliefs about Grammar .................................................. 122
  4.1 Conceptualisations of ‘grammar teaching’ ............................................... 123
    4.1.1 The problem of definition ................................................................. 123
    4.1.2 Conceptualisations ............................................................................. 124
    4.1.3 Aspects of grammar .......................................................................... 128
  4.2 Teachers’ experiences of learning grammar .............................................. 129
    4.2.1 Experiences of learning ................................................................. 130
    4.2.2 Comments on experiences ........................................................................
    4.2.3 The influence of their experiences ..................................................... 132
  4.3 Affective responses to ‘grammar’ ............................................................... 133
    4.3.1 The term ‘grammar’ .......................................................................... 134
    4.3.2 Negative feelings ............................................................................... 134
    4.3.3 Positive feelings ................................................................................... 138
    4.3.4 Linguistic subject knowledge .............................................................. 140
    4.3.5 Pedagogical confidence ............................................................................
    4.3.6 The influence of affect .......................................................................... 141
    4.3.7 Affective change ................................................................................... 142
  4.4 Judgements of the value of teaching grammar ............................................ 142
    4.4.1 Instinctive knowledge vs explicit teaching ......................................... 143
    4.4.2 Designing writing ............................................................................... 144
    4.4.3 Rules and accuracy .............................................................................. 145
    4.4.4 Other benefits ...................................................................................... 146
    4.4.5 Aspects which help .............................................................................. 147
    4.4.6 Aspects which hinder ............................................................................ 147
5.1.5a External factors.................................................... 174
  5.1.5ai The department............................................. 174
  5.1.5aii Curriculum and examinations......................... 175
  5.1.5aiii Resources.................................................. 176

5.1.5b Internal Factors.................................................. 176
  5.1.5bi Use of models (genre) .................................. 176
  5.1.5bii Use of models (patterns) .............................. 177
  5.1.5biii Use of discussion ...................................... 178
  5.1.5biv Use of personal response ............................ 179

5.1.5c Constraints.......................................................... 180
  5.1.5ci Technology / resources.................................. 180
  5.1.5cii Time............................................................ 180
  5.1.5ciii Behaviour.................................................... 181
  5.1.5civ Linguistic and pedagogical knowledge. ............ 181

5.1.5d Uncertainty, developing beliefs and practice..... 184

5.2 Case Study 2: Clare.................................................. 187
  5.2.1 Background..................................................... 187
  5.2.2 Data.................................................................. 187
  5.2.3 Pedagogical approach....................................... 189
  5.2.4 Grammar pedagogy.......................................... 190
  5.2.5 Thematic analysis............................................. 192
    5.2.5a Internal factors........................................... 192
      5.2.5ai Reflections on self .................. 193
      5.2.5aii Use of redrafting .......................... 193
      5.2.5aiii Use of stimulus materials ............ 194
      5.2.5aiv Use of self and peer assessment ...... 195
      5.2.5av Separation of content and form ........ 196
      5.2.5avi The ‘recipe’ approach to grammar..... 198
      5.2.5avii Grammar integrated .................... 199
    5.2.5b Constraints................................................... 200
      5.2.5bi The school context............................. 200
5.2.5bii Isolation within the department........... 200
5.2.5biii Time.................................................... 201
5.2.5biv Linguistic subject knowledge............. 201

5.3 Case Study 3: Celia.............................................................. 203
  5.3.1 Background.......................................................... 203
  5.3.2 Data........................................................................... 203
  5.3.3 Pedagogical Approach............................................. 206
  5.3.4 Grammar Pedagogy............................................... 207
  5.3.5 Thematic Analysis..................................................... 209
    5.3.5a External factors.................................................... 209
      5.3.5ai Focus on conventions ..................................... 209
    5.3.5b Internal factors................................................... 210
      5.3.5bi Focus on conventions ..................................... 210
      5.3.5bii Focus on product and accuracy ...................... 210
      5.3.5biii Focus on vocabulary .................................... 212
      5.3.5biv Mismatch ...................................................... 213
    5.3.5c Constraints........................................................ 214
      5.3.5ci Departmental pressure..................................... 214
      5.3.5cii Managing behaviour...................................... 214
      5.3.5ciii Time............................................................. 215
      5.3.5civ Linguistic subject knowledge......................... 215

5.4 Cross-case analysis....................................................... 217
  5.4.1 What different pedagogical approaches do teachers take when teaching grammar? ........................................ 217
  5.4.2 What are the matches, mismatches and tensions between teachers' beliefs and practice? ............................. 219
  5.4.3 What causes do teachers report for tension /
mismatches? ..................................................................... 221
6. Discussion

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>6.1 Introduction</td>
<td>223</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.2 Ontological beliefs</td>
<td>224</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.3 Episodic influences on beliefs</td>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.4 Affective beliefs</td>
<td>231</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5 Evaluative beliefs</td>
<td>232</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5.1 Explicit vs implicit</td>
<td>233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5.2 The role of terminology</td>
<td>235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5.3 A rhetorical model</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.6 Pedagogy</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.7 Case studies: matches, mismatches and tensions</td>
<td>241</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8 Case studies: causes of tension / mismatches</td>
<td>242</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.9 Developing theory of beliefs and practice</td>
<td>247</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.10 Conclusions</td>
<td>248</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

7. Conclusions: Implications for Research, Policy and Teacher Development

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>7.1 What teachers tell us about teaching grammar</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.1 Conceptual ambiguity</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.2 Uncertainty about the value of grammar</td>
<td>254</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.3 Who might it benefit?</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.4 The role of terminology</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.5 Valuing a rhetorical model</td>
<td>257</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.6 Negative attitudes</td>
<td>258</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.1.7 The place of grammar in the English curriculum</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.2 Teachers’ beliefs and practice</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.2.1 Pedagogical difficulties</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.2.2 The relationship between beliefs and practice</td>
<td>263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.2.3 Belief change</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.3 Summary: giving teachers control</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Glossary ........................................................................................................... 477

Bibliography ........................................................................................................ 481
LIST OF TABLES AND FIGURES

Chapter 1

Table 1.1 Summary of conceptualisations of ‘grammar teaching’ .......................... 29

Chapter 2

Table 2.1 Summary of ‘high quality’ studies examined in Andrews et al. 2004a ................................................................. 46

Chapter 3

Figure 3.1: Conceptual Overview ........................................................................ 82
Table 3.1: Phase one research design ................................................................ 87
Table 3.2: Phase two research design ................................................................ 88
Table 3.3: Interview questions and related research questions ....................... 93
Table 3.4: Coding Principles ............................................................................ 102
Table 3.5: Coding Examples ........................................................................... 104-5
Table 3.6: Top-level codes and related research questions ............................ 107

Chapter 4

Table 4.1 Original themes, research questions and aspects of belief ............... 122
Table 4.2 Additional themes, research questions and aspects of belief .......... 122

Chapter 5

Table 5.1: Lesson aims / objectives (Jane) ....................................................... 170
Table 5.2: Generic conventions taught (Jane) .................................................. 171
Table 5.3: Pedagogical features (Jane) ............................................................. 173
Table 5.4: Lesson aims / objectives (Clare) ..................................................... 188
Table 5.5: Pedagogical features (Clare) ........................................................... 189
Table 5.6: Lesson aims / objectives, year 7 (Celia) ........................................ 205
Table 5.7: Lesson aims / objectives, year 9 (Celia) ......................................... 205
Table 5.8 Generic conventions taught (Celia) ............................................... 206
Table 5.9: Pedagogical features (Celia).......................................................... 207

Chapter 7
Table 7.1 Conceptual Ambiguity................................................................. 252
Table 7.2 Uncertainty about the value of grammar.................................... 254
Table 7.3 Who might it benefit?................................................................. 255
Table 7.4 The role of terminology............................................................ 256
Table 7.5 Valuing a rhetorical model....................................................... 257
Table 7.6 Negative attitudes................................................................. 258
Table 7.7 Grammar in the English curriculum....................................... 260
Table 7.8 Pedagogical difficulties........................................................... 261
Table 7.9 Beliefs and practice................................................................. 263
7.10 Belief change................................................................................. 266
LIST OF APPENDICES

Appendix I: Audit Trail

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.i Administrative Documents</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.i.a Research briefing (phase one)</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.i.b Memorandum of understanding (phase one)</td>
<td>273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.i.c Training day powerpoint</td>
<td>274</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.i.d Research briefing (phase two)</td>
<td>278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.i.e Memorandum of understanding (phase two)</td>
<td>279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii Data Collection Instruments</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.a Original (pilot) observation schedule</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.b Original (pilot) interview schedule</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.c Revised observation schedule</td>
<td>284</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.d Revised interview schedule</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.e Teacher linguistic subject knowledge test</td>
<td>288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.ii.f Think-aloud protocol</td>
<td>290</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii Raw Data</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.a Three completed observation schedules</td>
<td>292</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.b Three semi-structured interview transcripts</td>
<td>299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.c Case study lesson transcripts</td>
<td>324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.d Stimulated recall interview transcript</td>
<td>383</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.e Think-aloud protocol transcript</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.f Field notes</td>
<td>399</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iii.g Participant’s response to draft case study report</td>
<td>401</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iv Data Reduction and Analysis Products</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iv.a Belief Profile (annotated by the participant)</td>
<td>403</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iv.b Interim codes</td>
<td>410</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iv.c Completed case study analysis framework</td>
<td>413</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.iv.d Summary of pedagogical practice</td>
<td>436</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
I.v Data Reconstruction and Synthesis Products

I.v.a Final coding frame ................................................................. 439
I.v.b Draft case report (as emailed to the participant) ......................... 443
I.v.c Response to participant sent with revised case report ............... 452
I.v.d Cross-case analysis notes ......................................................... 455

Appendix II: Participant Details .................................................... 458

Appendix III: Grammar for Writing? Research Design ...................... 459

Appendix IV: Tables of Results from Phase One ......................... 461