Narratives of Performance: An Interdisciplinary Qualitative Ethnography Investigating the Storied Lives of Amateur and Professional Boxers

Submitted by Paul Solomon Lennox, to the University of Exeter as a thesis for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Drama, August 2012.

This thesis is available for Library use on the understanding that it is copyright material and that no quotation from the thesis may be published without proper acknowledgment.

I certify that all material in this thesis which is not my own work has been identified and that no material has previously been submitted and approved for the award of a degree by this or any other University.

Signature..................................................................................................................
Abstract

This thesis identifies the shared pool of narrative resources, which constitute the public discourses and cultural meanings of the sport of boxing, in order to examine how individual boxers engage with them when performing their narrative identities. It is argued that the shared pool of narrative resources for boxing contain myths and legends that are taken for granted and yet heavily invested in by boxers and academics alike. This project explores how individual boxers engage with these resources in order to make sense of their own experiences and to formulate their narrative identity. The thesis asks how a thorough investigation of the shared narrative resources, and their use by boxers, provides new insights into what the sport of boxing means to boxers, and how shared resources are engaged with in order to perform idiosyncratic ontological narratives.

This project makes a unique contribution, as it is the first project of its kind to fully consider the relationship between the individual accounts provided by boxers and the narrative resources available to them. It pays particular focus to the narrative resources as they relate to amateur and professional boxers alike. Through a performance ethnography, and qualitative inquiry approach, research data was collected and co-constructed over a period of three years. This data informed the reading of boxing texts in order to ascertain what the shared pool of narrative resources were for boxers, and how individuals used and engaged with them. This project found that the narrative resources of boxing were powerful, persuasive, and provided vocabularies of motives for individual boxers. The shared pool of resources, whilst constitutive of the cultural meanings of boxing, were engaged with by individual boxers to tell stories about the desire for transformation, communion, respect and generativity.

Contents

Introduction ................................................................. 6

Methodology ................................................................. 8

Research Sites ............................................................. 12

The Importance of Boxing Stories .................................... 18

Boxing Narratives Contextualized .................................... 21

Boxing Texts, Ethnographies and Meta narratives .................. 24

Masculinity, Femininity and Industrialization ..................... 25

Boxing Ethnographies .................................................... 31

Non-ethnographic Studies ............................................... 42

Narrative: Making Meaning of Experience and the Performance of Identity .... 44

Overview ........................................................................... 50

Conclusion ........................................................................... 56

Chapter 1: Auto-ethnography ......................................... 58

J.R’s Voyage to Foreign Lands .......................................... 60
August 20,
2010 .................................................................................. 103

August 24,
2010 .................................................................................. 103

September 20,
2010 .................................................................................. 104

Switching Camps, November 17,
2010 .................................................................................. 104

My Gym .................................................................................. 108

Nerves - Again: September 13,
2011 .................................................................................. 111

September to November
2011 .................................................................................. 113

Fight Night ............................................................................. 120

Conclusion ............................................................................. 1

Chapter 2: The Narrative Resources of Boxing: Reviewing the Field

Introduction ........................................................................... 1

Story Types ............................................................................. 130

Cultural Meaning, Public Story ............................................................................. 133

Transformation ........................................................................ 135

Legacy and Heroes ..................................................................... 136

Compensatory Drive and the Familial and Genealogical Resources ......... 140

Crime and Salvation ..................................................................... 145
Methodology.................................................................2

05

Experiential and Performative Ethnography: Transgressive

Data.................208

Context, Background and

Overview.......................209

Global

Impressions..........................214

Components of the Global

Impression.........................215

Conclusion..............................2

36

Thesis

Conclusion..................................................240

Introduction.............................................2

40

What was

Achieved?..................................................242

Limitations and Plans for Development.................................255

Dissemination.............................2

60

Bibliography.....................................................264