

BD038781_002

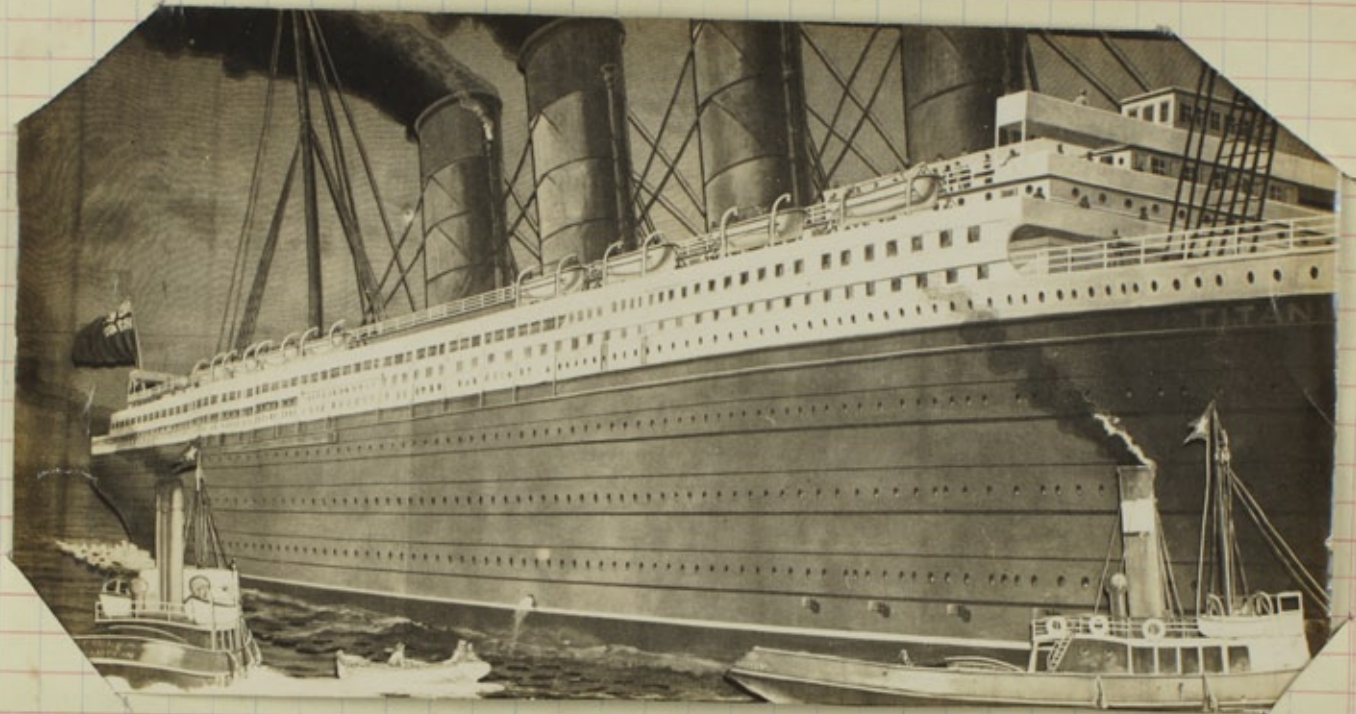

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'

Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"The greatest eloquence, the gifted speech of the orator, or the plainest words of any poor soul who sailed on that ship can neither add, nor detract from the immortal tale of simple heroism"

BD038781_003

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'
Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"She was something to be proud of as she struck deep water that April afternoon; a monument to man's ingenuity, a triumph of her time"

BD038781_004

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'
Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"Steaming ahead at well over 20 knots, her passengers settling down with pleasure, in the fact that they are on board for her maiden voyage"
Shining moment from stem to stern

BD038781_005

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'
Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"Suddenly, there is a slight shock, followed by a curious shivering movement from stem to stern"

BD038781_006

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'

Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"Then, the Titanic slowly tilted straight up on end"

BD038781_007

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'

Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.

"It was as tho' some great hand were pushing her down"

BD038781_008

An album containing photographs of a 1912 Myriorama show on the sinking of the Titanic entitled 'The Loss of the Titanic'

Copyright 2009 University of Exeter, all rights reserved.