THE OLD HOMES THE BEST AFTER ALL.

CHORUS.
No home like the old home, far across the sea,
No friends like the old friends, half so dear to me;
Fortune may come, and wealth to me may fall,
But though I succeed in the "new world," still the old home's
the best after all.

THE OLD HOME'S THE BEST AFTER ALL.

Written and Composed by HERBERT DARNLEY.

Sung by HARRY CLIFFORD.

KEY C.

1. Three years a-go I left my home and sailed to for-ign parts, Up-on the quay were lov-ing ones with tears and ach-ing hearts; I've made my "pile," but back a-gain I oft-en sigh to roam, For af-ter all the words are true, "There is no place like home."

CHORUS.

No home like the old home, far a-cross the sea, No friends like the old friends, half so dear to me; For tune may come, . . . and wealth to me may fall, . . . But though I suc-ceed in the "new world," still The "old home's the best af-ter all." all.

2.

I'm wealthy now, and that has brought much luxury to me,
But things are not so homely as they were across the sea;
The girls all know I've lots of cash, so to me they're nice and kind,
But they're not so sweet and gentle as the girl I left behind.

CHORUS—No home like the old home, &c.

I often see in dreamland loving faces I once knew,
And wish that I were back again with trusty friends and true;
Abroad's the place to make the cash and into luck to fall,
But dear "old England" is the place to spend it after all.

CHORUS—No home like the old home, &c.
