PROTÉAN VIEW: MOUNT VESUVIUS

The Mountain is first seen as a dark umbrella rising to project a sheet of a thin grey cloud ascending from the crater, by holding the view before a bright light. The crater changes to midnight, and an Eruption of the Vesuvius has taken place, which illuminated the surrounding objects with a fiery brightness, while the liquid lava was spewed out on the sides of the mountain.

SOLD BY
C. BURTON
STATIONER, No. 177, STRAND.