Abstract

The Socotra archipelago lies approximately 135 nautical miles northeast of Cape Guardafui, Somalia and 205 nautical miles south of Rās Fartaq, Yemen. The archipelago is made up of four main islands, Socotra, ʿAbd al-Kūri, Samḥa and Darsa, of which Socotra is the largest and most densely populated. The population of Socotra is divided between the interior pastoralists and the coastal fishermen and traders. While scholarly studies concerning the interior population abound, the fishermen of Socotra have received very little attention and little about them or their traditions is known. This thesis seeks to address this balance by studying their maritime traditions and asking the question, how have social, environmental and technological influences shaped the maritime traditions of the fishermen of Socotra?

The primary data forming the basis of this study is my ethnographic fieldwork carried out on the islands of Socotra and Samḥa between 2009 and 2010. This data is incorporated within a transdisciplinary framework that looks at some of the essential factors of historical, archaeological and environmental evidence to gain a holistic insight into the spatial and temporal factors affecting the maritime traditions of the fishermen.

This study argues several important points. The first is that the fishermen’s maritime traditions on Socotra are governed by their length of involvement in fishing and understanding of the environment they are operating within. Secondly, their fishing practices are influenced by social and economic demands, which have a direct impact on the vessels and equipment they use. Thirdly, the environment and landscape plays a major role in the fishermen’s techniques and practices. Finally, it also argues that there is not a singular, uniform maritime tradition for the entire island of Socotra, but that there are numerous regional variations.
PART ONE: THE STUDY

Chapter 1. Introduction

1.1. Research objectives

1.2. Overview of the chapters

Chapter 2. Literature Review

2.1. Historical accounts

2.1.1. The Classical Period (8th century BCE to 5th century CE)

2.1.2. The Medieval Period (6th to 15th century)
2.1.2.1. The Muslim Authors 55
2.1.2.2. The Chinese Authors 60
2.1.2.3. The European Authors 61
2.1.3. The Post Medieval Period (16th to 18th century) 63
2.1.3.1. The Portuguese 63
2.1.3.2. The British 67
2.1.3.3. The Dutch 68
2.1.4. The 19th Century 69
2.2. Archaeological Accounts 71
2.3. The Ethnographical Accounts 75
2.4. Conclusion 78

Chapter 3. The Conceptual Framework and Methodology 81
3.1. The Conceptual Framework 81
3.2. The Methodological Framework 83
3.3. Maritime Ethnographic Methodology 84
3.3.1. Oral Traditions 87
3.3.1.1. Open-ended Interviews 88
3.3.1.2. Semi-structured Interviews 89
3.3.1.3. Focus Groups 90
3.3.1.4. Participant Observation 92
PART TWO: THE FISHERMEN

Chapter 4. The Historical Ethnic Groups

4.1. The Islanders

4.2. The Foreigners

4.3. Conclusion

Chapter 5. The Historical Fishing Community

5.1. The Fishermen

5.2. Conclusion

Chapter 6. The Contemporary Fishing Community

6.1. Ethnic Identity and Ethnicity

6.2. Distribution

6.3. Boat shelters, ‘arîsh (Ar)

6.4. Social Relationships
6.4.1. Relationships between the Fishermen 135
6.4.2. The Relationship between the Fishermen and the Interior Population 141
6.4.3. The Relationship between Fishermen and the State 143
6.5. Conclusion 146

PART THREE: THE MARITIME LANDSCAPE AND CLIMATE

Chapter 7. The Maritime Landscape 150
7.1. The Physical Landscape 150
7.1.1. The Mountainous Interior 151
7.1.2. The Limestone Plateau 152
7.1.3. The Coastal Plain 156
7.1.3.1. The Northern Coastal Plain 156
7.1.3.2. The Southern Coastal Plain 157
7.1.4. The Coast 158
7.2. The Physical Seascape 160
7.2.1. The Outlying Islands 160
7.2.2. Bathymetry 161
7.3. The Inshore Physical Land and Seascape 162
7.3.1 The Northwest Coast 163
7.3.2. The Central North Coast 167
7.3.3. The Northeast Coast 171
7.3.4. The Southwest Coast 174
7.3.5. The Central South Coast 178
7.3.6. The Southwest Coast 181
7.3.7. Samḥa 184
7.4. Fishing Areas 186
7.4.1. The Northwest Coast 189
7.4.2. The Central North Coast 190
7.4.3. The Northeast Coast 193
7.4.4. The South Coast 194
7.4.5. Samḥa 194
7.5. Navigation 200
7.5.1. Position Fixing 202
7.5.2. Determining Course to Follow 206
7.5.3. Natural Navigational Aids 206
7.5.4. Celestial Navigation 209
7.6. Conclusion 212

Chapter 8. The Climate 215
8.1. The Monsoon Winds and their influence on Socotra 215
8.2. Tropical Cyclones 222
8.3. Local Winds and their influence on Socotra 223
8.4. Currents and their influence on Socotra 228
8.5. The influence of winds and currents on Socotra’s fishing communities 232
8.5.1. Monsoon Winds 232
8.5.2. Local Winds 240
8.5.3. Currents 242
8.6. The Fishing Villages 245
8.6.1. The North Coast 246
8.6.2. The South Coast 253
8.6.3. Samha 256
8.7. Conclusion 258

PART FOUR: VESSELS, GEAR AND CATCH

Chapter 9. Fishing Vessels 264
9.1. The Raft, Ramash (Ar) /Rūmuš (Soc) 265
9.2. The Date Palm-Frond Boat, Shāsha (Ar) 269
9.3. The Sewn Boat, Šērḥa (Soc) 272
9.4. The Dugout Canoe, hūrī (pl. hawārī) (Ar) 275
9.5. The Fibreglass Boat 283
9.6. Large Fishing Dhow, Sādāḳ (Soc)/ Wārra (Ar) 286
Chapter 10. Fishing Equipment

10.1. Trapping
10.1.1. Fish Traps, kêrkôr (Soc)
10.1.2. Lobster Traps

10.2. Nets
10.2.1. Cast Nets
10.2.2. Seine Nets
10.2.3. Drag Nets
10.2.4. Socotri Net Classification
10.2.5. Net Manufacture
10.2.6. Net Restrictions

10.3. Fish Lines, ʂo’hor (Soc) / watār (Ar)
10.3.1. Handlining
10.3.1.1. Deep-water Handlining
10.3.1.2. Shallow-water Handlining
10.3.1.3. Shore Handlining
10.3.2. Trolling
10.3.3. Longlining

10.4. Additional Fishing Equipment
10.4.1. Fish Hooks, ेे्ेले (pl. ेेळाली) (Soc) 325
10.4.2. Fishing Lures 325
10.4.3. Fishing Sinkers 326
10.4.4. Bait, धांडा (Soc) 327
10.4.5. Gaff, मिन्जेक (Soc) 328
10.4.6. Harpoon 329
10.4.7. Fish Club 330
10.4.8. Remora 331
10.5. Conclusion 331

Chapter 11. The Fisheries Economy 335
11.1. Demersal and Pelagic Fish 335
11.2. Turtles 343
11.3. Lobster (Panulirus) 345
11.4. Shells 346
11.4.1. Cowry shells (Cypraea) 346
11.4.2. Pearl shell (Pinctada) 347
11.4.3. Pearl oyster shell 349
11.4.4. Opercula, फ्हेर (pl. फ्हेरितिन) (Soc) 350
11.4.5. Shellfish gathering, शाहक (Soc) 351
11.5. Ambergris (Ambra grisea) 351

11.7. Conclusion 354

Chapter 12. Conclusion 359
